

Μουσείο Μπενάκη

A Singular Antiquity: Archaeology and Hellenic Identity in Twentieth-Century Greece

Preface

The Editors

doi: 10.12681/benaki.17968

Copyright © 2018, The Editors

Άδεια χρήσης Creative Commons Attribution-NonCommercial-ShareAlike 4.0.

Βιβλιογραφική αναφορά:

Editors, T. (2008). Preface. Μουσείο Μπενάκη. <https://doi.org/10.12681/benaki.17968>

This publication was made possible through funding by the Propondis Foundation

A SINGULAR ANTIQUITY

Archaeology and Hellenic identity in twentieth-century Greece

MOUSEIO
B E N A K I

3rd Supplement

EDITED BY
Dimitris Damaskos & Dimitris Plantzos

ATHENS 2008

MOUSEIO BENAKI - 3rd SUPPLEMENT
ATHENS 2008

Publisher: Benaki Museum

Editorial Board: Aimilia Yeroulanou
Dimitris Damaskos
Angelos Delivorrias
Charalambos Bouras

Academic editors: Dimitris Damaskos & Dimitris Plantzos

Copy editors: Valerie Nunn, Anna Karapanou

Graphic design: Vangelis Karatzas

Production management: ADcare

Printed on velvet matt sappi 135 gr. paper

Front cover: The dancer Nikolska on the Acropolis photographed by Nelly, 1927 (Athens, Benaki Museum, Photographic Archives)

Benaki Museum
Koumbari 1
Athens 106 74
www.benaki.gr
e-mail: benaki@benaki.gr; sales-shop@benaki.gr
Tel.: (+30-210) 3671000
Fax: (+30-210) 3622547, 3671063

© copyright: Benaki Museum

All rights reserved. No part of this book may be used or reproduced in any manner, including electronic publication and storage, without the explicit permission in writing of the Publisher.

ISSN 1109-4109

ISBN 978-960-8347-96-0

CONTENTS

PREFACE
INTRODUCTION
DIMITRIS PLANTZOS
Archaeology and Hellenic identity, 1896-2004: the frustrated vision
PART I.
ANTIQUITY AND THE GREEK ANTIQUITIES
MARK MAZOWER
Archaeology, nationalism and the land in modern Greece	33
MICHAEL HERZFELD
Archaeological etymologies: monumentality and domesticity in twentieth-century Greece	43
GEORGE TOLIAS
National heritage and Greek revival: Ioannis Gennadios on the expatriated antiquities	55
ANDROMACHE GAZI
‘Artfully classified’ and ‘appropriately placed’: notes on the display of antiquities in early twentieth- century Greece	67
MARLEN MOULIOU
Museum representations of the classical past in post- war Greece: a critical analysis	83
9 NIKI SAKKA
The excavation of the Ancient Agora of Athens: the politics of commissioning and managing the project	111
11 DAPHNE VOUDOURI
Greek legislation concerning the international movement of antiquities and its ideological and political dimensions	125
12 DELIA TZORTZAKI
The chronotopes of the Hellenic past: virtuality, edutainment, ideology	141
13 VASSILIS LAMBROPOULOS
The rehearsal of antiquity in post-modern Greek fiction	163
PART II.
GREEK ARCHAEOLOGY:
PARADIGMS AND IDEOLOGIES
KOSTAS KOTSAKIS
Paths to modernity: Dimitrios R. Theocharis and the post-war Greek prehistory	175
VANGELIS KARAMANOLAKIS
University of Athens and archaeological studies: the contribution of archaeology to the creation of a national past (1911-1932)	185

DIONYSIS MOURELATOS
The debate over Cretan icons in twentieth-century Greek historiography and their incorporation into the national narrative	197
OLGA GRATZIOU
Venetian Monuments in Crete: a controversial heritage	209
ALEXANDRA BOUNIA
Ancient texts, classical archaeology and representation of the past: the development of a dialogue	223
VANGELIS CALOTYCHOS
The dead hand of Philology and the archaeologies of reading in Greece	237
DIMITRIS PLANTZOS
Time and the Antique: linear causality and the Greek art narrative	253
YANNIS HAMILAKIS
Decolonizing Greek archaeology: indigenous archaeologies, modernist archaeology and the post- colonial critique	273
PART III.
THE IMAGINED REALITIES OF GREEKNESS
DIMITRIS TZIOVAS
Reconfiguring the past: Antiquity and Greekness	287
ANGELIKI KOUFOU
The discourse on Hellenicity, historical continuity and the Greek Left	299
DORA F. MARKATOU
Archaeology and Greekness on the centenary celebrations of the Greek state	309
DIMITRIS DAMASKOS
The uses of Antiquity in photographs by Nelly: imported modernism and home-grown ancestor worship in inter-war Greece	321
ELENA HAMALIDI
Greek Antiquity and inter-war classicism in Greek Art: Modernism and tradition in the works and writings of Michalis Tombros and Nikos Hadjikyriakos-Ghika in the thirties	337
ARTEMIS LEONTIS
An American in Paris, a Parsi in Athens	359
DIMITRIS PHILIPPIDES
The phantom of classicism in Greek architecture	375
MARIA DIAMANDI
The archaeologist in contemporary Greek novel	383
AFTERWORD
DIMITRIS DAMASKOS
In place of a conclusion	403
INDEX	409

PREFACE

MODERN GREEKS ENVISAGE their collective past as a cultural commodity; authentic, usable and eternally present. Archaeology has been instrumental in constructing the nation's identity, built on the tangible evidence it produces. This is by no means just a Greek phenomenon, a peculiarity of the state that inherited 'the glory that was Greece'. The rapport, however, between archaeological research and national(ist) strategy presents some interesting facets in a country which has been struggling, for most of the twentieth century, to counter the predicaments of modernity with the promise of modernization. And it is these peculiarities, concerning the Greek archaeologist as much as the historian and the social anthropologist, which prompted this publication.

Most of the papers collected in this volume were delivered at the 'Antiquity, Archaeology and Greekness' conference held in January 2007 at the Benaki Museum. Many of the papers were later revised by their authors, and some new papers have been added. The purpose of the conference was to investigate and assess the role of antiquity and archaeology in the forging of a national identity in twentieth-century Greece. Our stated aim at the time was to trace the steps, intentional or otherwise, which have determined the present state of Greek archaeology – as an academic discipline, as an educational practice, as the producer and at the same time the consumer of a multi-layered cultural reality. In the process, there emerged a wider picture of Classical antiquity as a cultural presence in Modern Greece – and a daunting one at that. What resulted from the conference, and what we hope this volume is offering in a more structured fashion, is the intricate network of Greek archaeologies, or rather the archaeologies of Greek modernity (and within it): academic and institutional, or alternative, habitual and indigenous.

We thank all those who helped us with the conference then and with this publication now, and especially Professor Angelos Delivorrias for his encouragement and hearty endorsement of our project since its early days.

We are also deeply grateful to the Propondis Foundation and its President, Mr Diamantis Diamantides, for the generous financial support which made both the conference and this publication possible.

The Editors

