

Synthesis: an Anglophone Journal of Comparative Literary Studies

No 16 (2024)

Derrida à l'œuvre: "Doing Theory" Against Inequalities

Contributors

Contributors

doi: 10.12681/syn.39880

Copyright © 2024

This work is licensed under a Creative Commons Attribution 4.0.

Contributors

Anders E. Johansson is Associate Professor of Comparative Literature at Mid Sweden University, with a focus on contemporary poetry and its relations to areas such as gender, ecology, and science, relations made invisible by the efficient divisions and blinding habits of our time.

Samuel Edquist is Professor of History at Mid Sweden University since 2019 and, previously, a Senior Lecturer in archival studies. His research has mainly focused on nationalism, archives, memory/heritage, and the history of modern social movements and civil society organisations, for example the temperance movement, the local heritage movement and popular education.

Katarina Giritli-Nygren is a Professor of Sociology at Mid Sweden University. She is interested in the sociology of gender, intersectional analysis and critical theory. Her research addresses different forms of governance relationships with a general focus on social transformation and a particular focus on the spatial and temporal aspects of intersectional disparities.

Sara Nyhlén is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences and the head of the Forum for Gender Studies at Mid Sweden University. She is also Associate Professor in political science. Her research focuses on critical policy analysis in different empirical areas with a particular interest in intersectionality, power and policy as well as in methodological development in the field of sociology and political science.

Ebru Öztürk is a Senior Lecturer in Sociology at Mid Sweden University. Her research interests lie at the intersection of religious conversion, ontological security, and the dynamics of populism and nationalism, with a particular focus on the interplay between religion, ethnicity, and gender. She holds a doctoral degree from the École des Hautes Études en Sciences Sociales (EHESS) in Paris.

Emelie Pilflod-Larsson is a Lecturer in Sociology at Mid Sweden University. Her current research centers on gardening and food security, where her focus is on human-nature relations, social relations, and ideology. She has also conducted research within the areas of healthcare restructuring and rural studies.

Sara Skott is Associate Professor in Criminology at Mid Sweden University, Sweden. Her research concerns different types and aspects of violence, including exploring violence through the lenses of Gothic and Ghost criminology. Her research also concerns the social construction and performative aspects of violence, including mediated constructions of violence. Some of her recent work has appeared in Critical Criminology and in Journal of Interpersonal Violence.