ARTICLE SUBMISSION

From your personal user page as an author, choose to submit a new article.

• Choose the section of the journal for submission (e.g. book reviews, articles etc)

• Choose the main language in which the article is written from the dropdown list

• Agree with the submission preparation checklist

• Attach your paper

• Fill in the article metadata in the language that the article has been written, including author information for all authors. The following metadata fields are obligatory:

Title

Abstract

Keywords. Separate keywords with semicolons (;)

Language (insert en for English)

References. Copy and baste the bibliography of your article in this field. This allows the editors to provide direct links to those articles, if they exist online, to help readers of your article directly export bibliographies in various formats, and help track the usage of these references

We also recommend that you fill as many fields as possible in the 'indexing' section beyond the obligatory ones above. Indexing helps network your article and make it more visible in the web.

OpenAIRE metadata. If your submission is the result of EC funding through Horizon 2020, this field is obligatory to fill with the grant agreement number of your research grant. This will allow for your publication to become visible in the European repository zenodo.org, which provides open access to all publications funded by the EC.

Supporting Institutions. We recommend that you fill this field if your article is the result of specific funding, for example by an FP7, Horizon 2020 project, by a private Foundation (by filling in e.g. European Commission or Wellcome Trust).
